Musial span Stout plan

A bridge named for Stan the Man would forge his Donora legacy in steel.

By CHRIS BUCKLEY
Staff Writer
cbuckley@tribweb.com

Every so often, someone drives through the Valley, sees a road sign for Donora and decides to check out the hometown of a baseball legend.

"The people want to drive through because they read that this is where Stan Musial was born," Mayor John Lignelli said.

Soon, people driving in to see the town Musial helped put on the map could do so across a bridge named for the hall-of-famer.

State Sen. J. Barry Stout, D-Bentleyville, has introduced a bill to rename the Donora-Monessen Bridge as the Stan Musial Bridge.

Lignelli asked Stout, the ranking member of the senate transportation committee, to introduce the bill to honor Musial.

"Stan Musial was one of the greatest baseball players of all time," Lignelli said. "Everyone I talked to is very excited. It's about time they

Obara officially boss at WCCC

He said the Hempfield institution must be prepared for growth.

By JENNIFER REEGER

HEMPFIELD TOWNSHIP – As Daniel J. Obara looks to the future of Westmoreland County Community College, he took time during his presidential inauguration Friday to honor those visionaries who founded and led the institution.

"I wonder what their vision was, almost 40 years ago, as they conducted the first classes for a few hundred students in the evenings at Jeannette High School," Obara said.

"Did they imagine that in such a short time, their fledgling college would someday enroll more than 7,000 students in a semester (and) graduate more than 16,000 students with associate degrees?

"Perhaps they didn't see quite so far, but those of us who followed did. We were able to because we stood on the shoulders of giants."

More than 430 guests joined Obara in celebrating his inauguration yesterday afternoon during a ceremony and reception at the main campus near Youngwood.

Obara, 66, of Hempfield, took over as the college's sixth president in April after serving in an interim role for two months.

He came to WCCC in 1996 and had served as vice president of academic affairs and student services.

Representatives from county, state and federal government and members from every facet of the WCCC community offered words of welcome and encouragement to Obara.

Obara was lauded as a tireless advocate for WCCC and community colleges in general.

Donora wall completion huge for Lignelli, Stout

The mayor has been working on the project for more than a decade.

DONORA – Although it was a cold and rainy Friday morning, it was the perfect day for Mayor John Lignelli.

The 88-year old, long-time borough official saw more than 10 years of campaigning for a new retaining wall on Route 837 near Gilmore Cemetery come to fruition as he cut the ribbon on a $2 million project.

Lignelli, who served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, began pushing for the project in 1998.

He testified before the state transportation commission in Washington, D.C., and Pittsburgh in an effort to preserve the graves of Civil War and Revolutionary War veterans buried in Gilmore Cemetery.

"I said to them, 'This wall is ready to come down. There are veterans' graves in there, and if they come down on your state highway, it's going to be an embarrassment to you,'" Lignelli said.

The project took root after Lignelli teamed with Sen. Barry J. Stout, D-Bentleyville.

The two have been working on the project since 2001.

Stout provided a grant for most of the cost through the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

The stretch of road had been closed for the last four months as a new retaining wall, road surface, sidewalks and fencing were installed.

Several borough and state officials gathered at the site for a commemoration ceremony Friday morning and a luncheon at the borough building.

Stout, a member of the state transportation commission, said the project is multi-faceted, noting the cemetery grounds have not been maintained for years.

"The ownership of the cemetery could not be identified," he said. "I guess, at one time, there was a church there that was destroyed by a fire, and there was no one responsible for the maintenance.

"I didn't want to have the chance of that slide going down there and actually putting those caskets and bodies out

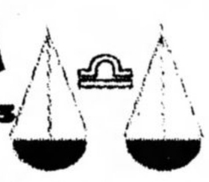
LIBRA
September 23 through October 23



If you're hoping for material gains in the year ahead, try to involve yourself in a unique enterprise. When you recognize a new or different idea being bandied around by a friend or associate, offer support and help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) -- Live within your budget instead of attempting to keep up with friends who are better off financially. No one will think less of you -- or even notice -- if you spend half as much as they do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- If you want a chance to defeat a tough opponent, hold back the lethal weapons until the endgame. Knowing when to make the big moves will be important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) -- Be honest in your self-evaluation, and don't fault others for your mistakes. Admission of your errors earns respect and forgiveness, while pointing the finger of blame creates enemies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- When negotiating a critical matter with a friend, be totally businesslike in handling the transaction. If you don't, you or your pal (or both) will end up feeling cheated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) -- Rather than remain indecisive about a hot-button issue, at least try to take one small, cautious step toward a solution. If you don't, you could be completely left out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) -- You'll get nowhere if you wait for the approval of others with regard to a good idea. Believe in yourself, and strive to be self-reliant.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- In order for a joint endeavor to work out well, every aspect must be equally shared. Unless the work, costs, risks and rewards are all evenly divided, it will fall apart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- Unless the focus within the household is for each member to try his or her best, everyone will likely just coast along and then place the blame on others for not getting the job done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- There is nothing wrong with your ideas; there's just a possibility someone else might have a better one. Instead of denying this fact, openly discuss the merits of each.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) -- Even if your excuse is absent-mindedness, you will cause hurt feelings if you unconsciously ignore a friend who has been doing nice things for you lately. Guard your manners.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) -- If you give people a chance to think things through and then make up their minds, they will be receptive to your suggestions. Pushing compliance on them will generate rejection.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Don't base your likes and dislikes purely on what you've heard, or you could miss out on meeting someone really nice. Don't pay heed to idle gossip.

"He is such a dedicated, dedicated servant for this college," said state Sen. Kim Ward, R-Hempfield.

"He has been to my office in Harrisburg probably once a month for the 10 months I've been in office. It's probably more than anyone else has come to visit."

Butler County Community College President Nicholas Neupauer recalled how he peppered Obara with questions when both served as vice president of academic affairs at their respective institutions.

"He is a man of great integrity and work ethic ... and most importantly he is dedicated to the mission of community colleges and specifically Westmoreland County Community College," Neupauer said.

Obara said there are challenges facing the college.

"With continuing enrollment increases as we experienced this year, the limits of our capacity to accommodate all students will be tested," Obara said.

He said the college must continue to enhance its online offerings to enable students to attend classes without the need for a physical classroom. And the college's infrastructure will need to be improved to increase capacity for programs.

"For many of our students, we are the college of last resort," he said. "We cannot – and we will not – deny them access to higher education."

Obara vowed to keep WCCC as the most affordable public college in Pennsylvania, but said "prudent, nominal increases in tuition, at times, are necessary and justified."

The college must also focus on student success. All students, from displaced workers to recent high school graduates to GED recipients, must all be given the opportunity to not only attend college but to graduate.

"Access without success is a false hope – unrealized potential and vanquished dreams," Obara said.

did something for him. He's a guy who really deserves it."

A graduate of Donora High School, Musial had 3,630 hits in a 22-year career from 1941 to 1963. That total was the National League record until it was broken in 1981 by Pete Rose.

Musial, who played his whole career for the St. Louis Cardinals, also hit 475 home runs, 725 doubles and 177 triples.

He hit greater than .300 in 17 seasons, winning seven National League batting titles. Musial played in 24 all-star games. With one more home run, Musial would have won the Triple Crown in 1948.

He served in the U.S. Navy from January 1945 to March 1946.

Attempts to reach Musial at his company, Stan the Man Inc., in St. Louis, were unsuccessful Friday.

Musial returned home to Donora on Aug. 27, 1994, when a pair of baseball fields were dedicated to him and former major leaguer Ken Griffey Sr. in Palmer Park in Donora.

Stout recalled the part Musial played in bringing a new baseball field to Bentleyville in 1960. At the time, Kraft was holding a nationwide contest.

The community that sold the most bags of the candy maker's caramels would receive a grant to build a recreational facility.

Musial came to Bentleyville to support one fundraising event – a home run hitting contest that required participants to buy a bag of caramels to enter – recalled Stout, secretary of the Bentleyville Boosters Club at the time.

Ultimately, the community sold 55,319 bags of caramels and Kraft paid for what became known as Caramel Park.

"Stan Musial has always been a fine gentleman," Stout said. "It is only fitting that we recognize him not only as an athlete but as a family man as well."

Stout said he is hopeful the bill will be approved quickly and that the bridge could be renamed in ceremonies marking the reopening of the span next year. Currently, traffic is limited to one lane in each direction as the bridge undergoes a nearly $20 million renovation project.

While the span may soon bear his name, it was Musial's name that played a part in obtaining federal dollars to build the access road connecting the Donora-Monessen Bridge to the community's downtown area.

In 1990, then-U.S. Rep. Austin Murphy sent letters to his peers support for legislation that would provide $9.4 million for the access road.

Then-U.S. Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, a Utica, N.Y., Republican, wrote to the Monongahela Democrat, "Donora is the hometown of my boyhood idol – Stan Musial. Count me in to support you."

there in the middle of Route 837."

Stout joked that the project touched two aspects of his professional career.

"Before I got into politics, I was a funeral director, so I guess I had a double duty on this project," Stout said.

The project was also necessary to ensure the safety of motorists and homeowners.

Stout said he was impressed by cooperation displayed during the planning, which involved having homeowners allow work to be done on small portions of their properties.

Some residents received $500 for portions of their parcels as the work progressed. At least one resident refused to take any money.

"It helped protect the value of their property because a slide would have compromised their property," Stout said. "The project took a lot of effort and cooperation.

"It was very important to me because 837 is a vital transportation link here in the Mon Valley between the communities of Donora and Monongahela. My history has been the highway needs of this area. It's important to the economic future of the Mon Valley area."

Stout, who worked with state Rep. Peter J. Daley to secure additional grants to help Donora cover engineering costs, said he was proud of the result.

"We've heard about the Great Wall of China, now we have the Great Wall of Donora," he said with a smile. "It's a sunny day for Donora."

Lignelli, the mayor for 16 years, also was grinning during the commemoration.

Lignelli said the project is among his proudest accomplishments, next to a $600,000 campaign he spearheaded for the construction of a borough library.

Washington County Commissioner Larry Maggi attended the dedication ceremony.

Maggi said Lignelli had been asking the county for help since he became a commissioner in 2003.

"This is something that just didn't happen overnight," Maggi said. "We're happy it occurred, especially in today's economic conditions and with the state budget. I'm not sure if we tried to get it done today that it would happen."

Councilman Tom Kostolansky recognized Stout and Lignelli for their dedication and persistence.

"This project is extremely important to a part of Donora that really, really needs it," Kostolansky said. "The project has been beautifully completed.

"Sen. Barry Stout was a principal player behind this entire project, and Mayor Lignelli. I think that both of their concerns speak well for Donora borough.

"Everyone is glad that we've finally been able to do something with Gilmore Cemetery."

Chicago cops in G-20 probe

CHICAGO (AP) – The Chicago Police Department is investigating several officers for allegedly forcing a man they arrested during last month's G-20 economic summit in Pittsburgh to take a photo with them.

Police announced earlier this week they were investigating the officers after a videotape of the alleged incident was posted on YouTube.

The video apparently shows about 15 officers in riot gear posing for a photo with a man they detained.

Cannon ball shot alleged felony

UNIONTOWN (AP) – A Pennsylvania Civil War buff faces a felony charge for accidentally firing a 2-pound cannonball through the wall of his neighbor's home.

William Maser, 54, had been charged with reckless endangerment, criminal mischief and disorderly conduct. Authorities on Thursday added a felony count of discharging a firearm into an occupied structure. Also Thursday, Maser waived his right to a preliminary hearing on all the charges.

Maser has acknowledged firing a homemade cannon outside his house in Georges Township in early September. The cannonball, about two inches in diameter, ricocheted and hit the neighbor's home about 400 yards away. Police say nobody was hurt.

Rhino nips zoo handler

A black rhinoceros bit a handler's thumb at the Pittsburgh Zoo & PPG Aquarium on Friday morning, causing a flesh wound, zoo President Barbara Baker said.

"She may lose her thumbnail. We'll see," Baker said about the female employee, whom she would not identify. "It was not an aggressive behavior. It was purely an accident."

The employee was taken to a hospital and was doing fine yesterday afternoon, Baker said.

The keeper was handfeeding the 4,500-pound animal carrots and "rhino biscuits" as part of a normal routine when the animal bit her. Zoo officials would not say which of its three rhinos was involved.

Baker said the keeper has "an excellent relationship with the rhinos," animals that typically eat leaves and woody plants.

Two-star general top U.S. Air Force nurse

The Charleroi native maintains friendships forged in the Valley.

A weekly look at people who left the Valley

By CHRIS BUCKLEY
Staff Writer
cbuckley@tribweb.com

The touch of a nurse's hand can be a life-altering event for a young, wounded soldier. It can provide hope.

"I talked to a World War II veteran, and he was able to recall to the date he was wounded," Kim Siniscalchi said. "He was severely wounded.

"You get to the point you lose hope and become focused on your survival. A nurse reached out and touched his hand. That touch enabled him to retouch with people.

"He remembered that day."

While a nursing is a profession, it can also be an action – the tender care of nursing someone back to health. Those things have led to a full sense of accomplishment for Siniscalchi.

A major general in the U.S. Air Force, the Charleroi native has reached the pinnacle of her military profession. She is chief of the Air Force Nurse Corps and was promoted from colonel to two-star major general – bypassing the one-star rank.

She is the daughter of Lois Stetz and the late Steve Stetz.

The position of the Air Force's top nurse, by law, is a two-star position.

Lt. Gen. James Roudebush, Air Force surgeon general, pinned the two stars on her shoulders Dec. 8, 2008.

She is assistant surgeon general for the Air Force Medical Department and assistant surgeon general for nursing services.

With her position, Siniscalchi commands all nursing personnel in active, guard and the reserve units.

The former Kim Stetz recalled someone who made a difference in the direction her life took.

While in college, a professor saw that Siniscalchi was studying biology and encouraged her to go into nursing.

"I think there are people in our lives who you never know how they are going to affect your lives," said Siniscalchi, who attended Duquesne University. "Years later, you realize they had an impact on your life."

Siniscalchi participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps on a scholarship. Before applying, she discussed the idea with her parents, who were supportive.

"It's about the ability to give back and serve," Siniscalchi said. "I thought at the time, 'You're young. This is something you can do for your country.'

"The military didn't start out as a career, but 30 years later … ."

Over the years, the service provided opportunities for advancement, education and travel.

Siniscalchi's career has taken her to such places as California, Virginia, Nebraska, Maryland, Massachusetts, Texas and Washington, D.C.

She began her Air Force career as a nurse intern at March Air Force Base, Calif., and has held such positions as pediatric, primary care and internal medicine and emergency nurse, clinical nurse, nurse recruiting chief, cardiac care and assistant charge nurse.

She met her husband, Joseph Siniscalchi, at a MASH party in Riverside, Calif., in 1980. She was a nurse intern at the time. A captain and pilot on alert at the time, he was dressed in his reserve suit.

Married a year later, the couple has a daughter, Lauren, 21, who is majoring in pre-medicine at Wittenberg University.

From 1990 until 1993, Siniscalchi was a part of the elite White House medical team that included two nurses each from the Air Force, Army and Navy. For awhile, she was the lone Air Force nurse in the group.

They provide medical care to the president, vice president, their families and all military personnel assigned to the 18-acre White House compound.

They traveled on Air Force One with the president. They also served on an advance team, spending weekends at Camp David, Md., and summers at Kennebunkport, Maine.

"I really loved President Bush. He was wonderful to work for. He and Mrs. Bush are an incredible team," she said of George Herbert Walker Bush and his wife Barbara.

Siniscalchi experienced history firsthand, traveling with the president.

She participated in the transition when President Bill Clinton took office, working for him until September 1993, when she was reassigned to Omaha, Neb.

There, Siniscalchi was reunited with her husband, who had returned from overseas, where he was commanding the 38th

Munchinski attorney gets $25,378 more

Fayette County has five years to pay Noah Geary.

By PAUL PEIRCE
For The Valley Independent
ppeirce@tribweb.com

Fayette County taxpayers will have to fork over $25,378 more in legal fees for the attorney of a convicted double murderer.

Senior Judge Charles Loughran, of Westmoreland County, ruled Friday in favor of Noah Geary's request that he be paid the money for work he did on state Superior and Supreme Court appeals for David Munchinski.

However, Loughran ruled that because of the dire financial straits of the county the payments can be made over the next five years.

Munchinski, 57, was convicted in 1986 of the Dec. 2, 1977, murders of James "Petey" Alford and Raymond Gierke at a Bear Rocks residence. Munchinski, who maintains he is innocent, is serving a life sentence.

After a 90-minute hearing at the courthouse in Uniontown, Loughran approved the payment after gaining assurances from Geary, a Washington County lawyer, that it would be his final bill to the county.

Munchinski has another appeal pending in the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals, but Geary said he is doing that work pro bono because he did not have court authorization to be paid.

Geary was court-appointed in 2004 to represent Munchinski in a post-conviction appeal by Senior Judge Barry Feudale.

Although Geary already had received $126,286 from the county, Geary told Loughran that payment was for his work at the Common Pleas Court level, but he had not received payment for work on Munchinski's state appeals between 2004 and 2007.

"This has been the most labor-intensive case I've ever been involved in. I once described it as a monstrosity," Geary testified.

"I'm a fair person," he added.

County solicitor Joseph E. Ferens Jr. said although he believed Geary's $50 an hour rate was fair, he said the county believed the previous $126,286 payment covered all of the appeals.

In Loving Memory

Marie V. Imburgia

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent a floral spray
If so, we saw it there.
Perhaps you sent a gift of food
Or let us use your car,
Perhaps it was a call you made
From nearby or afar.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest word
As any friend could say,
Perhaps you were not there at all
Or just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much, whatever the part.

A special thanks to Relatives, Friends, Neighbors, Doctors and Staff on 7th Floor Mon Valley Hospital, Fran and Gerri Imburgia, Bob and Susan Imburgia, Natalie and Ron Penwell & Families and all those who helped in any way to lessen our sorrow in our bereavement after the death of our beloved Mother and Grandmother.

Nuke waste imports problem

Federal regulators claim Congress must control flow.

By The Associated Press

Associated Press

Val Christensen, president of EnergySolutions, center, testifies Friday on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. before the House Energy and Environment subcommittee hearing on the Radioactive Import Deterrence Act. At left is Leonard C. Slosky, executive director of the Rocky Mountain Low Level Waste Board.

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Federal regulators told Congress on Friday that they have no power to stop Italy or any other country from dumping tons of radioactive waste in the United States.

It's up to Congress to stop other countries from shipping their radioactive waste to the United States, government officials who oversee the nuclear power industry told the House Energy and Commerce Committee's energy subcommittee.

Moreover, a federal judge has ruled that multistate compacts overseeing waste disposal in their region don't have the authority either to bar foreign waste destined for private sites, witnesses said at a hearing.

The committee is considering a bill by Reps. Jim Matheson, D-Utah, Bart Gordon, D-Tenn., and Lee Terry, R-Neb., to prohibit importation of all low-level radioactive waste. A companion version of the bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Lamar Alexander, R-Tenn.

At issue is 20,000 tons of low-level radioactive waste from Italy that a U.S. company wants to process in Tennessee and then store the remaining 1,600 tons at private site about 80 miles west of Salt Lake City, Utah. It's the largest amount of low-level radioactive waste the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has ever been asked to allow into the country.

Margaret Doane, the NRC's director of international programs, said there also are pending applications to import waste from Brazil and Mexico for disposal in Utah. Presently, the agency has no choice but to permit private companies to import waste, so long as they meet safety and security standards and there's an appropriate place to put it, she said.

Leonard Slosky, executive director of the Rocky Mountain Low-Level Radioactive Waste Board, which regulates waste disposal in Colorado, New Mexico, and Nevada, said the issue of foreign radioactive waste is a national policy issue that needs to be confronted.

"The U.S. has the technology and the capacity to manage the waste, but the policy issue is whether we should bring in the waste of other nations," Slosky said.

He said that if EnergySolutions, a company based in Salt Lake City, is allowed to import the Italian waste and bury it at its Utah disposal site it will effectively destroy the regional system Congress created in the 1980s for the disposal of low-level waste.

At that time, Congress authorized regional compacts made up of groups of states to regulate the disposal of low-level waste generated by nuclear power plants in those states.

United States new home for many Iraqis

The flood began after the U.S. was criticized for letting too few Iraqis move in.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA – More than 30,000 Iraqis have moved to the United States under a resettlement program that began in 2007 while much smaller numbers have gone to other countries, the U.N. refugee agency said Friday.

The big United States intake, which began with the program in 2007, came after Washington had been heavily criticized for taking in too few Iraqi refugees.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees has recommended to the participating countries the names of 82,500 Iraqis who should be moved, but so far only 33,117 have been able go to their new homelands, said spokesman Andrej Mahecic.

"Everyone is urgent," said Mahecic, but he stressed that priority should be given to medical emergencies and to women and children at particular risk.

He said the refugees have been determined to be in need of international protection.

One Shiite lawmaker in Baghdad questioned the U.N. figures, implying they had been inflated in order to make Iraq appear less stable than it really is.

"I believe there is an overstatement and a kind of exaggeration, and the number might include those who are originally in the States before 2003," said Abbas al-Bayati, member of the security and defense committee in the Iraqi parliament.

He acknowledged that the people being resettled in the U.S. "believe as individuals that because they worked with the Americans they will be targeted."

Violence in Iraq has decreased dramatically since the height of the insurgency in 2006 and 2007, although deadly attacks still occur. In one such attack Friday, a suicide bomber with an AK-47 opened fire on worshippers at a Sunni mosque in the northern city of Tal Afar, before detonating an explosives belt, killing 15 people.

She also keeps in touch with the former neighbors and life-long friends Peggy Deutsch, of Charleroi, John Rebar, of Charleroi; Barb Helon, of Monessen; and Billy Bosh, of Charleroi.

Deutsch, Helon and Rebar attended her pinning ceremony.

"One thing that is special to me is being able to maintain friendships at home," Siniscalchi said of the Mon Valley.

Deutsch, who has followed her friend's career, said Siniscalchi continues to surprise her.

"She just seemed like an ordinary kid, a next-door neighbor. You never heard an unkind word come out of her mouth," Deutsch said.

"You know she was President Bush's private nurse. Who would have thought that. She was chosen out of hundreds of people."

Deutsch said the Siniscalchi's Valley roots are deep.

"Her daughter just spent the week here," Deutsch said.

Siniscalchi has traveled to Iraq to visit medical personnel. She said what military medical personnel are able to accomplish in the war zone is "incredible." Equally so, they are doing incredible work rehabilitating burn victims and amputees, Siniscalchi said.

"During Vietnam, it took 21 days to move the wounded stateside," Siniscalchi said. "Today, we're doing it in three days. That's the true testament to our medical personnel. The contributions our young medics are making today is the story that needs to be told.

"In Iraq, if you get the wounded to the hospital, the survival rate is greater than 99 percent."

Sheriff: No indication balloon ordeal was hoax

Family will be interviewed about the incident again today.

By P. SOLOMON BANDA and IVAN MORENO
Associated Press Writers

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — A Colorado official said Friday there's no indication a family was carrying out a hoax when they reported their 6-year-old son was in a helium balloon that floated away from their home, causing a frenzied rescue effort before the child was found hiding in the garage.

"We believe at this time that it was a real event. Certainly people are free to speculate," Larimer County Sheriff Jim Alderden said. He added that if the episode "turns out to be a hoax, we will seek restitution ... by whatever means we have available."

Falcon Heene vanished Thursday around the time his family's homemade helium balloon floated away from their home, setting off a frantic search as authorities scoured the plains of northern Colorado for the youngster.

Questions were raised about the incident after the boy said "we did this for a show" in a live interview with CNN. The boys' parents are storm chasers who appeared in the ABC reality show "Wife Swap."

The boy's father, Richard Heene, called accusations that the ordeal was a publicity stunt "extremely pathetic."

The sheriff acknowledged that Falcon's comments had clearly "raised everybody's level of skepticism, but that investigators had no reason to believe the balloon odyssey was a hoax.

The sheriff said they'll interview the family again today to ask about the boy's comments.

"It seems much more likely that the boy was frightened because he saw that he was responsible for this device becoming untethered," Alderden said.

In a 911 call, the boy's mother, Mayumi Heene, told a dispatcher her son was in "a flying saucer," sobbed and said "we've got to get my son."

Then her husband, Richard Heene, got on the phone and described the helium craft, saying the boy "doesn't know how it operates." He said the balloon wasn't supposed to launch, and had been gone about 20 minutes.

The sheriff said that because of the "magnitude" of the event, his office contacted social workers, but asked them not to talk to the Heenes until they've talked to authorities again. Maj. Justin Smith of the sheriff's office said social workers were asked to get involved because of concerns raised about the family's storm chasing work. He said authorities want to make sure the children are in a healthy environment.

If it was determined the ordeal was a hoax, the parents could be charged with making a false report to authorities, a low-level misdemeanor, Alderden said.

Swine flu striking early

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
AP Medical Writer

WASHINGTON — Swine flu is causing unprecedented illness for so early in the fall — including a worrisome count of child deaths — and the government warned Friday that vaccine supplies will be even more scarce than expected through this month.

Manufacturer delays mean 28 million to 30 million doses, at most, will be divided around the country by the end of the month, not the 40 million-plus that states had been expecting. The new count from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention means anxiously awaited flu-shot clinics in some parts of the country may have to be postponed.

It also delays efforts to blunt increasing infections. Overall, what CDC calls the 2009 H1N1 flu is causing widespread disease in 41 states, and about 6 percent of all doctor visits are for flu-like illness — levels not normally seen until much later in the fall.

This new strain is different from regular winter flu because it strikes the young far more than the old, and child deaths are drawing particular attention. Eighty-six children have died of swine flu in the U.S. since it burst on the scene last spring — 43 of those deaths reported in September and early October alone, said CDC's Dr. Anne Schuchat.

That's a startling number because in some past winters, the CDC has counted 40 or 50 child deaths for the entire flu season, she said, and no one knows how long this swine flu outbreak will last. Half of those early fall child deaths are among teenagers, also surprising as preschoolers are thought to be most vulnerable.

"These are very sobering statistics," Schuchat said.

Also in contrast to regular winter flu, swine flu sometimes can cause a very severe viral pneumonia in otherwise healthy young adults, the World Health Organization warned Friday.

Typically, influenza weakens people so they're vulnerable to bacterial pneumonia, especially those over age 65. But the new H1N1 can dive deeper into the lungs, in "small subsets" of patients who go into respiratory failure within days, said WHO medical officer Dr. Nikki Shindo.

THE WORLD BRIEFLY

Debris found in search for pilot

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Debris and an oil slick were spotted in the Atlantic off the South Carolina coast as the search expanded Friday for an F-16 fighter pilot whose jet collided with another during night training exercises.

"We did have a report of an oil sheen which might be consistent with fuel from the fighter jet itself and we have also had a report of a small amount of debris," said Capt. Michael McAllister, commander of Coast Guard Sector Charleston.

The search was expanded from 750 to 1,300 square miles as Coast Guard and Air Force aircraft joined vessels from the Coast Guard, Navy, law enforcement and commercial shippers looking for Capt. Nicholas Giglio. He is based at Shaw Air Force Base in Sumter.

"We remain hopeful," said base commander, Col. Joseph Guastella Jr., noting the 77th Fighter Squadron did not fly Friday.

Federal deficit hits all-time high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit has surged to an all-time high of $1.42 trillion as the recession caused tax revenues to plunge while the government was spending massive amounts to stabilize the financial system and jump-start the economy.

The imbalance for the budget year ended Sept. 30, more than tripled last year's record. The Obama administration projects deficits will total $9.1 trillion over the next decade unless corrective action is taken.

As a portion of the economy, the budget deficit stood at 10 percent, the highest since World War II, according to government data released Friday.

President Barack Obama has pledged to reduce the deficit once the Great Recession ends and the unemployment rate starts falling. But economists worry the government lacks the will to make the hard political choices to cut spending and raise taxes to get control of the imbalances.

Stocks end week with decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks ended a strong week with a flash of selling after Bank of America Corp. and General Electric Co. signaled that businesses and consumers are still struggling to pay off their debts.

The market slid Friday as quarterly results from the companies dented hopes that earnings would show strong signs of improvement in the July-September period. A rise in oil also helped the market end well off its lows, repeating a pattern seen earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 67 points to finish just below the 10,000 mark, which it had broken through on Wednesday for the first time in a year. Despite the drop stocks still posted big gains for the week.

Bank of America lost more than $2.2 billion in the third quarter. The bank wrote down almost $10 billion in bad loans, about $1 billion more than in the previous quarter.

Putin wants song contest

MOSCOW (AP) — From the Cold War to a Battle of the Bands.

Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, by some accounts a big fan of ABBA, has suggested organizing an international song competition for Russia, Central Asia and China, saying it would strengthen cultural ties among the nations.

"Uzbekistan Idol" perhaps? Or maybe "Tajikistan's Got Talent."

Europe has been holding such a competition for decades, called the Eurovision Song Contest.

'PENNSYLVANIA CASH 5'

Two winners in 'Cash 5' jackpot

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Two players matched all five winning numbers drawn in Friday's "Pennsylvania Cash 5" game and will each receive $307,105.50.

Lottery officials said 130 players matched four numbers and won $314.50 each; 4,827 players matched three numbers and won $14 each; and 62,105 players matched two numbers and won $1 each.

Cheers 'n Jeers

Here is a critical look at some of the events that helped shape life in the Mid-Mon Valley area during the past week:

The Valley received some positive economic news this week with the announcement that the Flexsys America plant in Carroll Township will resume operation in November. All employees will be recalled to the plant, which has been shut down since June.

The swine flu fears that are sweeping the nation are also hitting the Mid-Mon Valley. The Charleroi Area and Frazier school districts both reported cases in the past week, and Mononongahela Valley Hospital has seen increased swine flu-related traffic.

Congratulations to the newest members of the California University Athletic Hall of Fame, who were inducted at a banquet Friday night. This year's inductees are Bryan Hartung, Pat Hobart, Sameera Philyaw, Joe Sarra, Chad Scott, Becky Siembak and Marty Uhar.

YOUR OPINION

Congress should set an example of saving

To the Editor:

According to Sen. Charles Grassley, a Republican from Iowa, if a health care bill is passed, it will include an increase in the premiums seniors pay for drug costs under Medicare Part D.

In June of this year, President Obama announced on national television that the nation's largest pharmaceutical companies voluntarily agreed to cut $80 billion off the price of drugs over the next two years for those enrolled in Medicare Part D.

Now, with $80 billion in cuts off the price of drugs for enrollees in Medicare Part D, why would Congress feel the need to raise premiums for Medicare Part D coverage?

Seniors and the disabled cannot afford any more increases in Medicare and HMO premiums.

Why don't the members of the House and Senate take a cut in pay and benefits? Let them set the example before taking more away from our seniors.

ANOTHER VIEW

The Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, on President Obama winning the Nobel Peace Prize:

As the newest recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, President Obama has a task no other winner has faced: figuring out how to respond gracefully to an enormous honor given embarrassingly prematurely.

The adulation with which much of the world has greeted the new president has fueled those critics who paint him as vain and insubstantial. Now, he has to explain why he, who has spoken eloquently of international cooperation and hope for the future but has had little time to achieve any concrete improvements, has won the world's most prestigious accolade ahead of others who have toiled for years, risking their lives to bring peace, justice and freedom to the world's bleakest corners. ...

Millions of Americans share the Nobel committee's high hopes that Obama's collaborative approach to the world will repair the nation's international standing and lead to greater cooperation and improvement. But it's a work in progress — barely.

The next bombshell

Brad BUMSTED

Lawmakers are already gauging the political impact of a cluster bomb going off at the state Capitol that may take out sitting lawmakers in a sweeping grand jury presentment to be offered by Republican Attorney General Tom Corbett.

They're concerned about the impact on the Legislature after the disastrous 101-day budget impasse that tarred even rank-and-file lawmakers who had little to do with the high-level negotiations among leaders and Gov. Ed Rendell that stymied action.

In the midst of this chaos, was an expectation that as soon as the budget ended, Corbett would announce the next round of criminal charges in a legislative corruption scandal. Last July, Corbett charged 12 people with ties to the House Democratic Caucus for allegedly doing political work at state taxpayers' expense. The first set of charges came shortly after the 2008 budget was approved.

The expectation was based on the belief that Corbett wouldn't have wanted to blow up the budget — as if it could have been much worse.

Corbett had said the next round would be "stunning."

What will the landscape look like here after the next round of so-called Bonusgate indictments, one GOP legislator asked?

Can it get much worse?

There's one key difference between the July 2008 announcement and the next round, which could come as soon as this week or in mid-November.

Now, Corbett is a declared candidate for governor.

His opponent, U.S. Rep. Jim Gerlach, R-Chester County, in August called on Corbett to resign as attorney general or give up his gubernatorial bid because of the "very disturbing" conflict of investigating lawmakers while he's running for governor and raising money.

So Jack Wagner, the state's auditor general, should also stop doing audits because he is a likely candidate for governor? Dan Onorato should give up governing Allegheny County because he's also engaged in widespread political activity in his declared gubernatorial bid?

Still, there's no denying there's a lot of negative buzz out there about Corbett conducting this investigation while running for governor. Part of it is generated by some Democratic defendants on Cassablanca.blogspot.com. A lot of it is from Capitol wags that had a lot of time on their hands waiting for the budget. But some of it comes from people I respect.

Corbett shouldn't resign. He was elected by Pennsylvanians to be attorney general.

But he should consider deflecting some of the criticism, which will mount, when he files the next round of charges. He can do so at the next press conference, by taking a step back and turning the probe over to veteran prosecutors Frank Fina and Anthony Krastek.

His political advisors would go nuts. He'd miss all that TV face time.

Critics would say, how can he distance himself anyway when the guys who work for him are still running it? He's still the boss.

But it would disarm his opponents. And it would show sensitivity to what some believe is a serious issue.

In the end, will the average Pennsylvania voter care? Probably not. Will opponents do TV ads hyping his alleged "conflict"? Take it to the bank.

But Corbett can put a lot of that to rest by making a brief announcement, turning the news conference over to his senior staff, and walking out of the room.

Keep running and wearing pink

Cokie and Steve ROBERTS

When NFL players take the field dressed in pink, you know something has changed. We've come a long way from the days when breast cancer was a taboo subject. In this 25th-anniversary year of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the ubiquitous pink ribbons remind us that we need to keep pushing for a cure, because we know that close to 200,000 women in this country will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year (and 1 in 8 over their lifetimes).

That's the bad news. The good news is that the death rate from breast cancer has declined by about 2 percent every year since 1990. And that's because of advocacy. All those ribbons, all those road races, all those walks, all those donations to organizations fighting breast cancer have worked. They have raised millions of dollars, and spurred federal funding to underwrite research that has led to lifesaving treatments.

But still. It would be nice to go through one October without another friend learning that she has breast cancer. It would be wonderful to go through a year without losing another friend, often many years after the initial diagnosis. And it would be gratifying to see every woman receive the kind of first-rate treatment that Cokie has received as one of the 2.5 million women in the country living with a history of breast cancer.

The disparities, first in detection and then in care, lead to vast disparities in outcomes. Though the death rates for Hispanic and African-American women have declined along with those for white women, African-American women remain 40 percent more likely to die of the disease, accounting for a disproportionate share of the more than 40,000 U.S. women who will lose their lives to breast cancer this year.

Legislation introduced by Rep. Kathy Castor, D-Fla., aims at eliminating the disparities in treatment. It's one of four pieces of legislation that a House subcommittee held a hearing on last week. The bills deal with specific problems in the breast-cancer population, and the congresswomen supporting them arrived in the committee room decked out in pink. They also arrived with personal stories.

Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, D-Fla., told of finding a lump only six weeks after a mammogram detected nothing. At 41, she was lucky to have had a mammogram at all. Though the evidence clearly shows that mammograms save lives, the percentage of women who regularly receive them has been dropping, and breast cancer is now the leading cause of death for women aged 40 to 49. Wasserman Schultz's bill would promote awareness among young women, whose cancers are likely to be more aggressive and diagnosed at a later stage.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Rosa DeLauro, D-Conn., a survivor of ovarian cancer, seeks to stop so-called "drive-through mastectomies." DeLauro wants to stop insurance companies from telling mastectomy and lumpectomy patients that they can't stay in the hospital overnight. Her legislation, which passed the House with only two dissenters in the last Congress, and enjoys bipartisan Senate support, would let doctors and patients — not the insurance companies — decide when a hospital stay should last 48 hours. Rep. Joe Barton of Texas, DeLauro's Republican co-sponsor, said he was sympathetic to the bill because "my sister is a breast-cancer survivor."

So is Rep. Jerry Nadler's wife. And the New York Democrat is encouraging Congress to pass a measure to ensure yearly screenings for women with a high risk of breast cancer. Those mandates are unlikely to be included in the big health-reform bill that's working its way through Congress, Nadler says.

Personal experience with breast cancer is now so widespread that lawmakers' willingness to draw on it has become a familiar part of the debate.

It hasn't always been that way. It has taken 25 years of promoting awareness to make the disease something talked about in hearing rooms rather than whispered about in hospital rooms.

First ladies Betty Ford and Nancy Reagan can take a lot of the credit for bringing breast cancer into the open. When they talked about cancer, they gave permission to other women to talk about it as well.

Questions remain in New Orleans

City residents loved president's speech, but still await progress.

By BECKY BOHRER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — A day after an enthusiastic, almost-gushing crowd met President Barack Obama on his first visit to New Orleans since taking office, some in this still-suffering, hurricane-struck city are wondering when platitudes and political speak will give way to greater progress.

Among them is recent law school graduate Gabe Bordenave, 29, who sees what he considers a continued nickel-and-diming by the Federal Emergency Management Agency over critical rebuilding projects, like a downtown hospital shuttered since Hurricane Katrina hit in 2005.

"I don't want to hear how problems are being solved," Bordenave said Friday. "I want to know why the problems are not solved."

Obama vowed that Gulf Coast rebuilding would be a priority of his administration. After taking office in January, he dispatched top officials — including Cabinet secretaries — to figure out how to get federal recovery money to state and local governments more quickly.

By the time Obama was elected, progress was already being made in rebuilding levees, schools and home, but it was often overshadowed by bureaucratic holdups and hard feelings among government officials about the response to Katrina and the slow pace of the massive recovery.

Associated Press

Onlookers cheer as President Barack Obama's motorcade passes after his town hall meeting in New Orleans Thursday.

At a town hall meeting Thursday, Obama cited progress in areas like taking on corruption in the local housing authority and reducing the number of storm victims living in federally supplied trailers. His administration says it has made changes that have helped free up more than $1 billion in FEMA recovery money for the state and clear dozens of long-standing funding disputes.

But that's only a dent in the state's lengthy backlog of complaints and projects, and rules limit the federal government's obligation and how money can be spent.

In response to a question from Bordenave about the former Charity hospital, which once provided indigent care for the area and was a main training hospital for medical students, Obama replied that he wished he "could just write a check" but "we've got to go through procedures."

He did make one bold pledge, in a city that has heard plenty of them over the years: "And so, I promise you this: Whether it's me coming down here or my Cabinet or other members of my administration, we will not forget about New Orleans. We are going to keep on working."

That was enough for Tangee Wall, who is fighting to keep officials from forgetting her neighborhood, eastern New Orleans. Once the center of the city's black middle class, it is now pocked by decaying apartment buildings and empty fast-food and box stores.

From her seat on the risers behind Obama, she said she watched him carefully and could see his sincerity.

"He has hit the ground running," she said, and the steps already taken show it's "not just rhetoric."

But for others, that's not enough. Sandy Rosenthal, the founder and executive director of levees.org, said her disappointment with Obama's visit was intense, mostly because he referred to Katrina as a "disaster of nature."

Rosenthal said the levee failures that sent water pouring into the city prove it was a manmade disaster too. Obama's failure to recognize that, she said, felt like a tactic to show that recovery money was coming from "the realm of largesse and generosity" rather than a government obligation to help New Orleans.

Still, this is an Obama city. He carried it in last fall's election while Republican Sen. John McCain won the state. And T-shirts bearing his image have been fixtures in shops that once peddled shirts bearing no shortage of creative uses for the acronym FEMA.

Expectations are high. This is also a city in desperate want of a leader — Mayor Ray Nagin has been a complete disappointment for many who believe he has lacked vision and squandered opportunities to build the "bigger, better" New Orleans promised when they decided to reinvest in their homes or move here to be a part of history.

Bordenave, who considers himself a moderate Democrat, acknowledged the recovery does not fall on just the federal government's shoulders; it's a shared responsibility. But with the city mired in financial problems, if you're the mayor "what do you do?" he said. "That's why I really turn to the federal government for help."

Others, like Terence Butler, are willing to give the president more time.

"I guess they're trying to do what they can," said the 52-year-old painter, speaking through an iron-wrought door in a section of Gentilly where he said crime is a problem and reminders of Katrina's devastation — the FEMA trailer, empty house with overgrown yard and blue tarp strips flapping on a roof — are hard to miss.

Said Butler: "He did give a good speech."

House Democrats paring cost of health care bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early estimates from congressional budget umpires show that House Democrats are close to President Barack Obama's $900 billion target for health care legislation, a spokesman for Speaker Nancy Pelosi said Friday.

The House versions, including a government-run insurance plan as an option for consumers, would cost under $900 billion over 10 years, said Brendan Daly, a spokesman for Pelosi, D-Calif. But, he said, "No final policy decisions have been made on how to proceed."

Preliminary cost estimates from the Congressional Budget Office show the evolving legislation is already within range of Obama's target. The numbers remain in flux, however, because House leaders are still tinkering with details and sending in new policy ideas to budget analysts.

The ballpark figure of $900 billion reflects the cost of expanding coverage by providing tax credits to help people buy health insurance, and also by broadening the Medicaid health program to reach more low-income people, Daly said.

It does not include some $240 billion over ten years that lawmakers want to spend to address a shortfall in Medicare payments to doctors. The White House says those costs should not be included in the pricetag for the health care overhaul. But the Medicare provision was part of the original House bill.

The final House bill is expected to include a government-sponsored insurance plan that would compete with private health insurers. Leading Democratic lawmakers say support is building for a Medicare-like plan in which the government would set the payment levels for medical providers, instead of negotiating.

Health care legislation is expected to be on the House floor in early November.

Powerful results for new diet pill creates huge demand on pharmacies

Consumers flood phone lines looking for new diet pill after clinical studies show main ingredients produce weight loss

(West Palm Beach, FL) Millions of doses have been sold, but demand for Cylapril increases every day. The rush to get the product comes from the clinical data that the products main ingredients are in fact effective in controlling weight gain, reducing stress and increasing energy. Some drugstores are reporting to be out of stock for Cylapril and phone lines have been flooded by dieters searching for a natural solution to their growing weight problems.

Adrenal Fatigue Warning Signs

- ☑ Weight gain (especially around middle)
- ☑ Cravings for sugar or salt
- ☑ Dependence on caffeine and energy drinks
- ☑ Trouble getting to sleep, restlessness
- ☑ Lack of energy in the morning
- ☑ Experiencing mid afternoon crashes

Shipments are being rushed to Wal-Mart, Walgreens and other local pharmacies but the manufacturer suggests calling the toll free hotline, 1-888-309-1804 to avoid the wait in case the product goes on back order again.

How does Adrenal Fatigue cause weight gain?

It affects 4 out of 5 people and most don't know they suffer from it. The adrenal system works as the control center for your body and regulates metabolism and energy production. Studies have shown that stress, nicotine and artificial stimulants like caffeine, reduce adrenal function. Weight problems and lack of energy are a direct result.

Clinical Results Proven

A clinical study conducted by Epel and colleagues (2001) included fifty-nine women who participated in both a stress session and a control session on different days. Higher levels of cortisol were found on the stress day where the subject consumed more calories compared to low stress days where the consumption of calories was less. These findings suggest that a high level of stress will cause you to eat more due to increased cortisol levels. According to the study, reducing cortisol levels through an enhancement of adrenal functioning (in the way that Cylapril does) would therefore decrease food intake and subsequently may help control weight gain. Cylapril exerts an anti-fatigue effect that increases natural energy, while also helping to suppress appetite because it produces a sense of fullness. Results indicate that with Cylapril, less calories are consumed due to a healthy decrease in appetite.

Adrenal Fatigue Institute formulates solution

Researchers worked with the Adrenal Fatigue Institute to develop Cylapril, a formula that will increase energy, decrease appetite and speed up weight loss. Dieters are seeing results quickly and are reporting to feel an increase in energy as early as the third day of use without changing their everyday routine. Brad Lubin, National Sales Manager at the Adrenal Fatigue Institute, says, "I can't believe the amount of orders we've taken for Cylapril in the last 30 days. Stores can't keep it in stock and we are all putting in extra hours to make sure its available to everyone that needs it".

Rushing shipments to meet demand

Stores are reporting that they can't stock product fast enough. The Adrenal Fatigue Institute is rushing shipments of Cylapril to Wal-Mart, Walgreens and other local pharmacies to meet demand. They have also created a toll free hotline, 1-888-309-1804. Because they know how important public awareness is about Adrenal Fatigue, they have developed a book explaining how it affects your stress levels and ability to control your weight. Call the hotline to receive a free copy while supplies last. The manufacturer wants to remind the public that inventory is extremely limited so its important to act fast before product goes on back order again.

To Get a FREE Bottle of Cylapril Call 1-888-309-1804

Local Retail Outlets - Currently Wal-Mart, Walgreens and other local pharmacies have Cylapril in stock but with demand soaring supplies are limited.

To get a FREE bottle of Cylapril - Call the 24 hour hotline, 1-888-309-1804. The first 100 callers will receive a free book explaining Adrenal Fatigue.

Easy tips for healthier cakes

Pumpkin-cranberry dessert uses white whole-wheat flour.

By JIM ROMANOFF
For The Associated Press

A slice of cake is always a pleasure, but it doesn't have to be a guilty one.

When baking cakes, there are a few things you can do to give most recipes a healthy makeover. This pumpkin-cranberry spice cake, for instance, is an indulgent but healthy treat that uses tricks easily applied to other recipes.

First, half of the all-purpose flour is replaced with white whole-wheat flour, which significantly increases the cake's whole grain count without adding the astringent flavors some people associate with more conventional whole wheat.

White whole-wheat flour has the same nutrition as standard whole-wheat flour, but with a lighter color and milder flavor. It's milled from a hard white winter wheat berry, rather than the hard red spring wheat berry of traditional whole-wheat flours.

Like standard whole-wheat flour, white whole wheat requires additional moisture and some recipes intended for all-purpose flour will require some adjustments if making a substitution.

Second, canned pumpkin puree does double duty by providing a classic flavor and replacing all but 1/3 cup of the oil. This combination keeps the cake moist and tender, while keeping down the fat.

For many cake and quick bread recipes, especially richly flavored ones such as chocolate and gingerbread, you also can use fruit purees to replace up to three-quarters of the fat.

Apple butter or prune puree (which is available commercially in cans as prune or plum pie filling) work best because they add plenty of moisture and contain pectin, which like fat coats the starchy flour particles and prevents them from forming the glutens that make baked goods chewy.

Pumpkin Cranberry Spice Cake

Start to finish: 1 hour 10 minutes (20 minutes active)
Servings: 16

1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup white whole-wheat flour
1 tablespoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons ground ginger
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/3 cup canola oil
3 large eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
15-ounce can pumpkin
2 teaspoons grated orange zest
2 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons water
1 cup dried cranberries
Powdered sugar, for dusting

Heat the oven to 350 F. Coat a large Bundt pan with cooking spray or brush with oil. Add a small amount of granulated sugar and turn the pan to coat the inside, discarding excess.

In a medium bowl, stir together both flours, the cinnamon, ginger, allspice, nutmeg, baking powder, baking soda and salt.

In a large bowl, combine the sugar, oil, eggs and vanilla. Beat with an electric mixer on high until the mixture is thick and pale, about 3 minutes. Add the pumpkin, orange zest and juice, and water. Beat on low until smooth.

Sift the dry ingredients on top of the pumpkin mixture and stir just until combined. Stir in the cranberries.

Using a rubber spatula, scrape the batter into the prepared pan, smoothing the top. Bake for 40 to 50 minutes, or until a skewer inserted at the center comes out clean. Turn the cake out onto a wire rack to cool completely.

Dust with powdered sugar.

Pie pops take pressure out of baking

This traditional American treat finds a new home on a stick.

By ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

How much cute can you handle in a pie?

We fell in love with the idea of mini apple pie pops after seeing versions of them on several blogs, including Bakerella.com and Luxirare.com. Everything tastes better when it's tiny and on a stick, right?

The trick to getting an apple pie to perch happily on the end of a lollipop stick is to shape the pie into a crescent, rather than a round. This allows the dough to wrap around and more fully anchor itself to the stick.

It's also important to use a thick apple filling that is partially cooked on the stove. These pops bake more quickly than a standard pie, so they won't be in the oven long enough for the apples to cook entirely there.

Be sure to use cardboard lollipop sticks (available at craft and baking shops), not plastic.

Apple Pie Pops

Start to finish: 45 minutes
Servings: 20 pops

2 large apples or 3 small, peeled, cored and diced
1/2 cup sugar, plus 2 tablespoons, divided
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon apple pie spice blend
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon water
15-ounce package prepared rolled pie dough (contains 2 pieces)
20 lollipop sticks
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon water
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Heat the oven to 375 F. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper, then coat the paper with cooking spray.

In a medium saucepan over medium-high, combine the apples, 1/2 cup of the sugar, lemon juice and apple pie spice. Bring to a boil, then cook for 2 minutes. In a small glass, mix the cornstarch and water, then add to the apples. Stir and continue cooking until thick.

Remove the apple mixture from the heat and set aside.

One at a time, unfold each sheet of pie dough and run a rolling pin over it several times. Use a 3-inch round cookie cutter to cut 10 circles of dough from each. Knead and reroll the scraps as needed.

Place a scant tablespoon of apple filling in the center of each circle. If you have a dumpling press, it works great to seal these. Otherwise, fold each round in half and seal the edges by crimping with a fork.

Poke a lollipop stick into the corner of the crescent and run it up the inside of the fold. Pinch the dough around the stick to anchor it. Arrange the pie pops on the prepared baking sheets.

In a small bowl, whisk together the egg yolk and water, then brush it over the tops of the pops. In a small bowl, mix together the remaining 2 tablespoons of sugar and the cinnamon. Sprinkle over the pops.

Bake for 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Let cool for a few minutes on the baking sheet.

If a recent trip to the orchard left you with more apples than you have plans for, this deep-dish style Dutch Apple Pie will bake a good home for them.

Got plenty of apples? Try a pie with serious heft

By The Associated Press

When a conventional apple pie just isn't enough to satisfy an autumnal craving — or to use up all those apples you picked — go deep with a Dutch apple pie. This deep dish-style pie is easy to assemble and has a wonderful flavor.

Dutch Apple Pie

Start to finish: 1 1/2 hours (30 minutes active)
Servings: 8

For the pie:
18 ounces prepared pie dough
3 pounds apples
1/2 cup sugar
3/4 cup golden raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice

For the streusel topping:
1/2 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, chilled
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon allspice
Pinch salt
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Whipped cream, to serve

Heat the oven to 350 F. Butter and lightly dust with flour a 9 1/2-inch springform cake pan.

On a lightly floured surface, roll out the pie dough, then use it to line the prepared pan. The dough should run all the way up the sides of the pan.

To trim the dough, fold the excess over the rim, the run a rolling pin over the rim. Refrigerate while preparing the apples.

Peel, core and dice the apples. In a large bowl, combine the apples, sugar, raisins, cinnamon and lemon juice. Mix well and set aside.

In a food processor, combine all of the streusel ingredients except the walnuts. Process to form coarse crumbs. Add the walnuts and pulse several times to just combine.

Transfer the apple mixture to the pie crust. Sprinkle the streusel mixture over the apples in an even layer. Cover the pie with foil and bake for 30 minutes. Remove the foil and bake for another 25 to 30 minutes, or until the top is golden.

Let cool a bit before serving. Top with whipped cream.

Monessen rains points on J-M

Hounds' third quarter scoring barrage breaks open close game.

By JEFF OLIVER
Staff Writer
joliver@tribweb.com

MONESSEN — After two quarters, Monessen's Tri-County South Conference game with visiting Jefferson-Morgan at Memorial Stadium had all the makings of a nail-biter.

The score was 14-14 and the team's offensive statistics were every bit as even as the score.

However, on a chilly, rainy night, the Rockets succumbed to a storm in the third quarter.

Not a storm from Mother Nature, but a scoring typhoon by the Greyhounds.

Monessen exploded for 29 points in less than seven minutes during a wild third-quarter spree and turned the tight contest into a 43-21 rout.

With the win, Monessen (5-2, 5-0) not only clinched a WPIAL Class A playoff berth, but also held on to sole possession of first place in the conference.

The Greyhounds used a combination of a big-play rushing attack, opportunistic defense and a bit of trickery to blow away J-M (5-2, 3-2) in the third quarter onslaught.

Brett Crenshaw, who had 174 yards rushing on 11 carries and scored three touchdowns, had a 32-yard TD run and rushed for 90 yards on 5 carries in the quarter.

Trae Cook, who rushed for 77 yards on 8 carries for the night, scored twice in the third quarter.

Brady Kunsa picked off a pass and returned it 37 yards for a score.

But maybe the biggest play was a bit of trickery attempted by the Greyhounds when the game was still in doubt.

Monessen had just taken a 21-14 lead on Cook's 3-yard run with 10:09 left in the period.

As the Greyhounds lined up for the kickoff, they snuck place-kicker Coby Matush on the field next to kickoff specialist Shane Osborne.

Leps enter playoff race

BVA moves into third-place tie with 21-13 victory over Ringgold.

By BRIAN HERMAN
Sports Editor
bherman@tribweb.com

ROSTRAVER TOWNSHIP — After starting 0-2 in the Big 7 Conference, Belle Vernon Area High's football team wasn't anywhere near the playoff picture.

The Leps are today,

Thanks to BVA's deceiving 21-13 win over Ringgold at James Weir Stadium and West Mifflin's 28-0 loss to Trinity, the Leps (4-3, 2-2) and Titans (5-2,2-2) are tied for third place.

Both teams need one more win to make the playoffs.

The Leps' final two games are at unbeaten Thomas Jefferson Friday and home with Elizabeth Forward, while the Titans visit Ringgold before hosting TJ.

Ringgold coach Lloyd Price was impressed with the Leps.

"I think Belle Vernon can hang with them (TJ)," said Price. "They have a good team and I'm sure Aaron (Krepps) will have them ready."

Krepps, meanwhile, wasn't pleased with his team's fourth quarter performance against the Rams (2-5, 0-4) after taking a 21-0 lead.

"We were doing a good job of containing (Dylan) Patch until the fourth quarter when we got sloppy," he said. "I wasn't happy with our play in the final period."

The Leps tackled the Rams' elusive junior quarterback seven times in the first three periods and three times in the fourth quarter.

Patch went into the final period with minus two rushing yards before gaining 58 yards.

The Leps led 7-0 at halftime on Brandon Dilmore's 40-yard touchdown toss to Ian Dobbins with 2:04 remaining in the first quarter to climax a five play, 64-yard drive.

The Leps had a 42-yard touchdown run by Matt Green in the opening 3:34 wiped out by a holding penalty.

Ringgold's lone scoring opportunity in the first half was a 34-yard field goal attempt by Skyler Fransko which was blocked by the BVA line at 6:29 in the second period.

The Leps made it 14-0 on the first play of the fourth quarter when Dilmore went in from one yard out to end a seven play, 50-yard drive.

Dilmore's 26-yard pass to fullback Spencer Lynn on a fourth and six was the key play, putting the Leps on the Rams' 5-yard line.

Less than three minutes later, the Leps had a 21-0 cushion after Green went in from the eight.

Sophomore Adam Cole blocked a Derrick Fiore punt to give the Leps possession at the Rams' 10.

"The blocked punt proved to be a big play," said Price.

The Rams got on the scoreboard when sophomore Percy Law broke three tackles after catching a pass from Patch and took it 34 yards with 7:52 remaining.

A 31-yard run by Patch was the big gainer in the 74-yard drive.

Patch trimmed the lead to 21-13 when he raced in from 12 yards out with 1:15 remaining before Fransko missed the extra point.

"Too little, too late," said Price. "We didn't quit when we were down 21-0. I was proud of our kids for fighting back."

NOTES: Green finished with 119 yards on 21 carries. Patch completed 12 of 24 passes for 131 yards ... Ringgold had 39 rushing yards going into the fourth quarter.

McGuffey gives Cougars' Briggs no room to run

Charleroi star limited to 45 yards in 22-9 loss.

By BILL HUGHES
For The Valley Independent

CARROLL TOWNSHIP -- Coming into its 22-9 loss to McGuffey at Joe Montana Stadium Friday night, Charleroi had relied on its running game most of the season.

Charleroi tailback Quentin Briggs came into the contest third in the WPIAL in rushes (147), seventh in yards (917) and tied for 19th in scoring (66) points.

McGuffey stymied the sophomore all night and held him to 45 yards on 14 carries and limited Charleroi to 69 yards rushing on 23 carries.

"They confused us up front by using different defenses and giving us multiple looks," said Charleroi coach Luke Mollis. "We couldn't get going on the ground."

After a Charleroi punt on the contest's initial drive, McGuffey went 75 yards on 12 plays as Nick Shuman went in over the right guard to give the Highlanders a 6-0 lead. Derrick Whipkey's extra point attempt went wide right.

Charleroi blew a golden opportunity early in the second quarter as it took over at the McGuffey 37.

After Corey Altemara went 10 yards for a first down on the first play of the drive, the Cougars could get no closer.

On fourth down, Tommy Thorpe attempted a deep crossing pass to Kyle Shannon, but the ball was tipped just before getting to the Cougars' high-energy receiver.

With 2:49 left in the half, the Cougars took over in prime real estate when Ray Campbell recovered a a fumble by Trenton Bedillion at the Highlanders' 30.

After a four-yard loss by Briggs, Thorpe hit Shannon with a 27-yard slant pass that put the Cougars on the seven, but the make-shift hosts could not get in the end zone. Greg Black hit a 27-yard field goal with a second left in the opening half.

The defenses controlled the first half with Charleroi being limited to 79 yards on 22 plays while the Cougars held McGuffey to 82 yards on 19 plays.

Outside of the Highlanders' opening drive, the Charleroi defense held them to seven yards.

After holding McGuffey on its first drive of the second half, Charleroi went 72 yards on four plays with Thorpe hitting Shannon on a deep slant route for a 54-yard score

Black's extra point hooked left, but the Cougars took a 9-6 lead with 4:54 left in the third quarter.

However, the Highlanders did not waste any time in taking the lead right back.

After the Charleroi kickoff only traveled to the 50, McGuffey went 50 yards on three plays and the drive was capped by Bedillion's 30-yard run.

Bedillion's extra point gave the Highlanders a 13-9 lead with 3:19 left in the quarter and one possession later,

Pitt's Lewis runs wild on Rutgers

Freshman rushes for 180 yards in 24-17 win.

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — The new kid on the team allowed Pittsburgh to end four years of frustration against Rutgers.

Freshman Dion Lewis ran for 180 yards and two touchdowns and the Panthers posted their first win over Rutgers since 2004 with a 24-17 victory on Friday night.

"I think a few guys on our team had this game circled on their calendar," guard John Malecki said after the Panthers (6-1, 3-0 Big East) got off to their best league start since 2003.

This was a game the seniors wanted though. They had beaten every other Big East team during their careers except the Scarlet Knights (4-2, 0-2).

And last year might have been the most embarrassing game. Rutgers went to Pittsburgh and embarrassed the-then No. 17 Panthers 54-34.

"It's been a long time coming," Pittsburgh coach Dave Wannstedt said. "I am very happy for our seniors. These kids really worked extremely hard over the past four years to try to build this program up and Rutgers has been a team that we just haven't been to play well enough to win."

Lewis was the difference this year. He carried 31 times and scored on runs of 1 and 58 yards, noting he was motivated by the seniors this week.

"Everybody, you could see it in their eyes they really wanted this game, not having beat them in four years," Lewis said. "To get this win for those guys, who worked hard for four years to try and beat this team, it's just great."

Bill Stull threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Dorin Dickerson, Dan Hutchins added a career-long 45-yard field goal and the Panthers held Rutgers to a season-low 38 yards rushing.

"It was personal for our team, considering we haven't beaten them ever since I was here and Coach Wannstedt was here," said Stull, who completed 16 of 24 for 153 yards.

Trojans suffer 3-0 loss

First-year California High football coach Brady Barbero had to look back on his toughest loss today.

Freshman Kyle Colborn kicked a 19-yard field goal with two seconds remaining to give host Beth-Center a 3-0 victory in a battle of second place teams in the Tri-County South Conference in the mud Friday.

California quarterback D.J. Martinak, who was listed as doubtful with an ankle injury, had 70- and 60-yard touchdown runs called back.

Jordan Kinder ran for 130 yards for Beth-Center (5-2,4-1), which beat California (4-3, 3-2) for the fourth straight year.

Cal closes its home season Friday with Jefferson-Morgan.

Elizabeth Forward 22, Derry 14

The Warriors upped their record to 3-0 against Keystone Conference teams.

After blowing a 13-0 first quarter lead, Elizabeth Forward scored the last nine points.

Football roundup

Gerald Johnson's 9-yard run gave the Warriors a 19-14 halftime lead with Nick Kalpakis closing the scoring with a 27-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Josh Pomilio went 1 yard and Greg Sotereanos three yards for Elizabeth's first quarter touchdowns.

Elizabeth (4-3, 1-3) is home with Chartiers Valley Friday.

Uniontown 49, Yough 13

The Cougars couldn't contain the Red Raiders' Fred Johnson.

Johnson had four touchdowns, including three on returns.

Johnson scored the game's first two touchdowns on punt returns of 61 and 40 yards before closing the scoring with an 85-yard kick return.

Arnold Walker added a pair of touchdowns for Uniontown and rushed for 141 yards.

Uniontown led 28-0 at halftime and 42-0 going into the fourth quarter.

Tyler Mains scored both of Yough's touchdowns.

Mains caught a 15-yard touchdown pass from Brandon Gelet and ran 23 yards for a score.

The Cougars (1-6, 1-4) play at Trinity Friday.

Fort Cherry 49, Frazier 14

The Rangers scored the last 28 points in the second half to break open a 21-14 contest.

Chase Kirmeyer went 3 yards and Ron Holp 2 yards for the Commodores' touchdowns in the second and third quarters.

Fort Cherry's Nick Hurley returned punts 60 and 65 yards for touchdowns.

The Commodores (3-4, 2-3) play at Serra Friday.

Bentworth 28, Avella 18

The Bearcats snapped a five-game losing skid with their first Black Hills Conference win under coach Lou Rood.

Bentworth (2-5, 1-4) closes its home season Friday with Chartiers-Houston.

As Osborne trotted up to kick off, Matush cut in front of him and lifted a short kick over the J-M front line. Monessen's Nick Bolias recovered the ball on the Rockets' 32.

On the next play, Crenshaw raced 32 yards to make it 29-14 after Kunsa's two-point conversion, and the Greyhounds had two touchdowns in 11 seconds.

"I give the credit to special teams coach A.J. Teets," said Monessen coach Andy Pacak. "He made that call and we went with it. I think that was a big turning point in the game because things kind of went our way really fast after that."

After forcing J-M to punt, the Greyhounds went 45 yards in seven plays with Cook scoring his second 3-yard touchdown scamper of the quarter.

After Kunsa threw the two-point conversion pass to Earl Pinkney, it was 37-14.

But the Greyhounds weren't finished yet.

On the Rockets' next possession, Kunsa stepped in front of a Brandon Kozich pass and raced untouched 37 yards to make it 43-14.

The four-score barrage came in a span of 6:30.

"I thought we played really well, not just in the second half, but in the whole game," said Pacak.

"Turnovers hurt us in the first half. We moved the ball well, but we had two fumbles that allowed them to score pretty easy."

After a scoreless first quarter, Monessen took a 7-0 lead when Crenshaw swept around left end and raced 40 yards untouched for a touchdown.

The first of two lost fumbles by Greyhound quarterback Terrance Stepoli gave J-M the ball at the Monessen 43. Three plays later, Kozich hit Brent Moskola down the middle of the field for a 40-yard touchdown play that knotted the score.

On Monessen's next possession, Stepoli coughed up the football again and the Rockets had the ball on the Greyhounds' 17.

Five plays later, the Rockets had a 14-7 lead when Derek Haiden scored from 7 yards out.

The Greyhounds knotted the score before halftime by driving 58 yards in 12 plays with Crenshaw rolling 17 yards to score on a fourth-and-two with 1:17 left before halftime.

"Brett is a really talented runner," said Pacak. "He's a threat to break it on any given play. He and Trae give us a really good one-two punch."

The Greyhounds have won five consecutive games and will put their unbeaten conference slate on the line next Friday at Carmichaels.

"The key for us is finally having all of our kids playing in the same places and doing what they are capable of doing," said Pacak. "Now it's up to us to keep it going."

NOTES: The Rockets had a game-opening 15-play, 55-yard drive that was stopped on the Monessen 15. the drive lasted over seven minutes ... J-M went over 18 minutes without a first down between the second and fourth quarters ... Osborne made two touchdown-saving tackles on Moskola on kickoff returns ... After Kunsa's TD in the third quarter, Pacak pulled all of his starters for the remainder of the game.

Bedillion's right foot gave the guests a 16-9 lead on a 23-yard field goal.

Charleroi began its next possession at its own 37, but the Cougars lost 12 yards on three plays, keyed by a Scott Lemaster's sack of Thorpe, and were forced to punt.

McGuffey took over at its 30 and put the game away with a 70-yard drive on 10 plays as Shuman added his second touchdown, this time from six yards out, to close the scoring with less than 20 seconds to go in the contest.

The loss leaves Charleroi in a traffic jam in the Interstate Conference.

"There are some really good teams in this conference and at least one good team will not get into the playoffs," said Mollis. "But we can only control what we do."

Charleroi is at Washington Friday in a battle of two of the conference's five 5-2 second place teams

NOTES: McGuffey outgained Charleroi in total yards, 266-161, and on the ground 266-69 ... Thorpe was four of seven passing for 92 yards while McGuffey did not complete any passes ... Shannon finished with three catches for 89 yards ... McGuffey won the first down battle, 14-6 ... McGuffey had 14 first downs while Charleroi had six ... Charleroi was penalized six times for 35 yards whereas McGuffey was penalized seven times for 51 yards.

Sabathia, Yankees stop Angels cold

By RONALD BLUM
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — CC Sabathia and the New York Yankees stopped the Los Angeles Angels cold in the AL championship series opener.

On a blustery night more suited to bobsleds than baseballs, Sabathia pitched eight superb innings of four-hit ball to win his second straight postseason start and New York took advantage of a rare sloppy game by Los Angeles in a 4-1 victory Friday.

"It was about as cold as it gets," Sabathia said. "It was pretty nasty out there today."

The Angels looked like chilled Californians withering in the unseasonable wintry weather, making three errors that led to two unearned runs and allowing an infield popup to drop untouched for an RBI single. Even Torii Hunter, an eight-time Gold Glove center fielder, allowed a single to roll past him.

"We took advantage of a couple miscues," Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. "It's one game and we know that this is going to be an extremely tough series."

It was 45 degrees at gametime, and a 17 mph wind made it feel worse. Because of the cold conditions, the traditional foul line introductions before the first game were scrapped.

Back in the ALCS for the first time in five years, New York built a 2-0 lead in the first by taking advantage of a throwing error by left fielder Juan Rivera and a popup by Hideki Matsui that fell between third baseman Chone Figgins and shortstop Erick Aybar, who each thought the other would snag it.

"It was a mistake. It was ugly, but it happens," Angels manager Mike Scioscia said.

Angels starter John Lackey crouched and screamed in anger. The night didn't get much better for Los Angeles, which depends on speed and didn't attempt a single steal.

Dodgers 2, Phillies 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A grounder off a fielder's glove. A bunt that slipped by two players. The Los Angeles Dodgers' latest postseason rally began in the weirdest, wackiest way.

Another throwing error by Chase Utley, a pinch-hit single and two walks also were part of the Dodgers' crazy eighth inning that produced a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on Friday, tying the NL championship series at one game each.

The Dodgers took the lead after Phillies pulled Pedro Martinez, who allowed just two hits over seven shutout innings. Andre Ethier drew a bases-loaded, two-out walk from rookie J.A. Happ, capping the Dodgers' third comeback win of this postseason.

Game 3 in the best-of-seven series is Sunday in Philadelphia.

Roethlisberger seeking damages from woman

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Ben Roethlisberger is seeking unspecified counter damages from a woman he says falsely accused him of raping her in what his lawyer describes as a plan she hatched to seduce the Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback in his Lake Tahoe casino-hotel room.

The woman alleged in a civil suit filed in Washoe District Court in July that Roethlisberger sexually assaulted her at Harrah's in July 2008 after he lured her there under the false pretense of needing his television repaired.

Roethlisberger's lawyer, John Echeverria, said in a response to the lawsuit filed this week that the woman made up the story.

Charleroi football games get moved

There's been a time and location change for today's Donora at Charleroi games in the Mon Valley Midget Football League.

The contests will be played at the field on the Charleroi school campus and not at the stadium.

The first contest will start at 10 a.m.

Cal volleyballers drop Mercyhurst

After losing the first set 25-22, California University's volleyball team won the next three, 25-23, 25-16 and 25-10 over visiting Mercyhurst Friday.

Joanna Nist led the Vuilcans (22-4, 13-0) with 17 kills and 17 digs for her 14th double-double.

Bucs deal Adams to Chicago

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers traded underachieving defensive end Gaines Adams to the Chicago Bears for a second-round pick in the 2010 draft.

The deal Friday night came four days before the NFL trade deadline.

Adams was the fourth overall pick in the 2007 draft out of Clemson and had 13? sacks in two-plus seasons with the Bucs, failing to play up to expectations that he'd help revive a once-revered pass rush.

In five games this season, Adams had 14 tackles and one sack.

Shane McMahon quits WWE

Word broke yesterday that Shane McMahon has turned in his notice, effective Jan. 1, 2010, to WWE.

Shane McMahon, son of WWE Chairman Vince McMahon, is the Executive Vice President of Global Media for the company.

While this may come as a surprise to some, it is not a complete surprise to many who know the inside dealings with the WWE.

Shane has always been a "lay low" type of person in the WWE, like his mother Linda while his sister Stephanie is loud and vocal like their father.

Several times Shane has had ideas that he pitched over different aspects of the family's business and the ideas were shot down.

The biggest one was how the WWE was going to use ECW. Shane wanted to make ECW, the WWE's C-brand, into its own entity while Vince and Stephanie wanted to make it a watered-down version or Raw and Smackdown. Everyone knows who won out on that.

I have dealt with Shane on numerous occasions and he has been nothing short of genuine and a treat to work for. The first time I did a show for the WWE was the Nov. 15, 1999, edition of Raw from the Civic (now Mellon) Arena. Shane oversaw the backstage brawl I was involved in with JBL and Ron Simmons and he was very open to ideas.

He looked over the script with Simmons, JBL, myself and Pittsburgh wrestler Beast and let us have input on how to tweak the two-segment brawl. (I will save that story for another column!)

As Beast, myself and a few others left the show towards the end, Shane escorted us out and talked openly the entire way. He genuinely appreciated the fact that we realized how much he did that night for us behind the scenes, including making sure we were "taken care" of financially for the effort we gave.

But like anything else with pro wrestling, could this be a ploy by the WWE?

The last time it pulled a story line that it made look real was Donald Trump "buying" Raw earlier this year, and the WWE caught flack for duping its stock holders, so I don't see that being the case this time.

A huge MMA fan, could Shane be looking to start up his own company, but in a different genre? More on this story next week.

R.I.P. Lou Albano

Captain Lou Albano, the manager of the most title holders in WWWF/WWF/WWE history, passed away Wednesday. Albano managed Ivan Koloff to the WWWF title and 15 teams to tag team gold.

Albano made a name for himself as the manager of many top bad guys, and his legend grew when he was on the opposite side of 1980s music star Cyndi Lauper during the "Rock and Wrestling" Era in the WWF during the company's first boom period.

Albano, whose managerial career started in the 1970s, turned into a fan favorite shortly after the Lauper feud and led the British Bulldogs to the WWF tag titles at WrestleMania 2. It was his last match as a manager.

TNA Bound For Glory tomorrow

A.J. Styles will defend the TNA title against Sting in what people are trying to play up as Sting's last match. Sting is not going anywhere, so Stinger fans can relax. Also, it appears Booker T and Scott Steiner will be done with TNA following the event.

Bad Browns ruining rivalry

Steelers have taken control of the once-competitive matchup.

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — This was the Browns-Steelers rivalry: Hall of Famers Jim Brown and John Henry Johnson trading 100-yard games. Terry Bradshaw shaking off Joe "Turkey" Jones' violent sack to torment Cleveland with touchdown passes. Bill Cowher vs. Bill Belichick.

This is the Browns-Steelers rivalry: James Harrison tackling quarterbacks, as well as a Browns fan who unwisely runs onto the field. The Steelers' regulars rarely playing four quarters. Scores of 31-0, 34-7, 27-7, 41-0. A turnpike rivalry that's become a turnpike rout.

Playing Cleveland twice a year once meant so much to the Steelers, they refused to shift from the old NFL into the AFC during the 1970 merger unless the Browns went with them. Now, playing the Browns twice a year mostly means two victories that require little muss or fuss and generate little fan excitement.

A rivalry truly is a rivalry only when both teams are competitive, and that's rarely been the case lately with the Browns. They've dropped 11 in a row to the Steelers, 17 of 18 since 2000 and 24 of 27 since 1993. No wonder they've become the most welcomed week on the Steelers' schedule aside from the bye.

The Browns haven't swept a season series from Pittsburgh since 1988, or three years before coach Chuck Noll retired. Cowher lost to them only five times in 15 seasons, and Mike Tomlin is 4-0 against them.

Steelers safety Ryan Clark almost needs reminding that the Browns (1-4) are supposed to be a big game on Pittsburgh's schedule as the Browns trudge into Heinz Field on Sunday amid another season that's fast slipping away.

Associated Press

Cleveland quarterback Derek Anderson completed just two passes last week, but that was enough to beat Buffalo.

"I don't come into the game all excited because we're playing the Cleveland Browns," Clark said. "I guess maybe if they start beating us some it will turn into a rivalry, and I'll get into it a little more, but for me it's just football, a division game and we have to win as many of those as we can."

The Steelers (3-2) have yet to win an AFC North game, but then they've played only one, a 23-20 loss in Cincinnati. After beating San Diego 38-28 and Detroit 28-20 the last two weeks, the Steelers are welcoming back safety Troy Polamalu, who missed four games with a knee injury, and Willie Parker, who missed two with a sore left big toe.

The Browns are coming off a raggedy 6-3 win at Buffalo in which Derek Anderson had the lowest completion percentage (11.8 percent) of any winning quarterback since the '70 merger. They've tried both Brady Quinn and Anderson with little success, and they're not likely to find it in Pittsburgh, where they threw for only 20 yards while losing 31-0 last season.

As coach Eric Mangini said, it's up to the Browns to restore the rivalry. While the Steelers might not be overly excited by this game, the Browns are.

"You feel it," Mangini said. "You feel it in the city. You feel it in the locker room. You feel it. It's just understood. It's part of the culture."

The Browns stealing one from the Super Bowl winners in their own stadium might seem improbable, but stranger things have happened.

In 1999, the year the Browns returned to the NFL, the Steelers held them to two first downs while winning 43-0 in Cleveland. But the Browns inexplicably won the return matchup in Three Rivers Stadium 16-15 as Phil Dawson kicked a decisive 39-yard field goal on the final play.

"You can ask any Browns fan — that will make their life, their day, their week, however you want to look at it, if we can beat this football team," wide receiver Joshua Cribbs said.

Doing that probably requires another big game from Jamal Lewis — he ran for 117 yards against the Bills and has 934 in his career vs. Pittsburgh — and the Browns slowing Ben Roethlisberger, who is second in the league in passing yardage.

Previously, Roethlisberger was a move-the-chains quarterback who found ways to keep drives going, but he's becoming a big-yardage thrower who can win a game even if there's no running game to complement him. That wasn't a problem when Rashard Mendenhall ran for 165 yards against San Diego and 77 against Detroit, and now he'll go against the league's worst rushing defense.

Offensively, the Browns aren't much better, ranking above only Oakland in total yardage and passing offense.

For now, the resumption of the rivalry might have to wait.

"You can't get caught up in previous years," Ward said. "They have a new coach, new players, they're not the same Cleveland Browns we've been beating up. It's a matter of us controlling what we can control. If we don't go out there and give up turnovers and let them into the game, we should be fine."

Losing defensive end Aaron Smith to a season-ending shoulder injury was a major setback to a Steelers defense that is No. 4 in the league, and linebacker James Farrior said they must learn to win without one of the league's best run stoppers.

"We've got to see how we adjust," Farrior said. "We don't want to stop that streak."

STEELERS OFFENSE — OVERALL (7), RUSH (21) PASS (4)
STEELERS DEFENSE — OVERALL (4), RUSH (2), PASS (14)
STREAKS, STATS AND NOTES — The rivalry has become a rout: Steelers hold narrow edge in all-time series, but have won 11 in a row against Browns, 17 of 18 since 2000 and 24 of 27 since 1993. Only three Browns players — K Phil Dawson, C Ryan Pontbriand and TE Steve Heiden — have beaten the Steelers while with Cleveland. ... Pittsburgh's average winning margin vs. Cleveland during the past five seasons was 16.5 points. ... Browns ended a 10-game losing streak by beating Bills 6-3 last week, but Derek Anderson's 11.8 completion percentage (2 of 17) was the worst by any winning QB with at least 15 passing attempts since the 1970 merger. ... The Browns' 2 completions also were the fewest for any winning team since 2000. ... Browns RB Jamal Lewis ran for 117 yards against Bills. Since 2007, when Lewis has 25 or more attempts he has averaged 139.5 yards. Browns are expected to target the left side of Pittsburgh's defense now that DE Aaron Smith (rotator cuff) is out for the season. ... Lewis needs 66 yards rushing to reach 1,000 yards in his career against Pittsburgh. ... Browns DT Shaun Rogers has blocked 9 field goals since 2004. ... Browns' Joshua Cribbs has 7 return touchdowns (5 kickoff returns, 2 punt returns), tying him with Eric Metcalf for club record. Cribbs has 2 return scores vs. Pittsburgh. ... The Steelers are 8-1 vs. Browns at Heinz Field, including one playoff game. ... QB Ben Roethlisberger is 9-0 against home-state Browns. ... Steelers WR Hines Ward has 3 TD catches in past 4 games vs. Browns. Ward is No. 4 in NFL with 440 yards receiving and is on pace to surpass career high of 1,329 yards in 2002. ... Steelers LB James Harrison has 22 sacks the last two seasons, tying him for league lead with DeMarcus Ware of Dallas. Harrison has 6 this season, 5 in past two games and 3 last week against Detroit.

Mendenhall expected to play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steelers running back Rashard Mendenhall is expected to start against the Browns after returning to practice following a day off with flu-like symptoms.

Mendenhall went through a full practice on Friday.

Steelers safety Troy Polamalu also will start on Sunday. He practiced all week after missing four games with a torn medial collateral ligament in his left knee.

Mendenhall ran for 165 yards against San Diego and 77 yards against Detroit the last two weeks as Willie Parker sat out with a left big toe injury.

Pitt loaded with freshmen

Huge losses will force Jamie Dixon to rely on younger players.

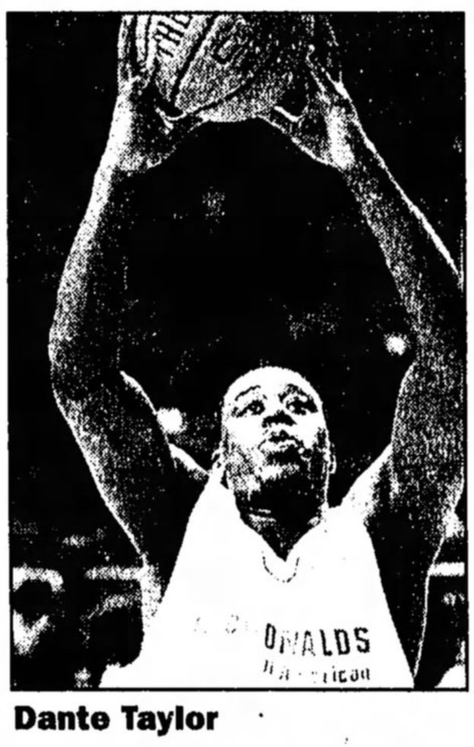
By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Most seasons, Pitt coach Jamie Dixon looks down his bench and sees multiple players who will start within a year. This season, he'll see mostly freshmen and, beyond them, more freshmen.

Attrition is a way of life among college basketball's elite, which commonly lose their best players to the NBA before their senior seasons. At Pitt, the recruiting classes are crafted to prevent a substantial drop-off in talent, and the strategy has led to eight consecutive 20-win seasons and NCAA appearances.

While the Panthers previously rebuilt without truly rebuilding, they are beginning their biggest reconstruction project in the 10 years since former coach Ben Howland inherited a program that had averaged only 12 wins the previous five seasons.

The Panthers started preseason practice Friday without two of the best players in school history, NBA second-round draft picks DeJuan Blair and Sam Young. Two other starters, point guard Levance Fields and forward Tyrell Biggs, also are gone from a team that went 31-5 and was ranked No. 1 in February.



Dante Taylor

Because of an injury (guard Jermaine Dixon's broken foot) and an academic issue (Gilbert Brown can't play until late December), the Panthers may play their Nov. 13 opener against Wofford without any of their top six players from last season.

"I know what it looks like on paper, but for us we've never looked at that," Jamie Dixon said. "We've always had guys elevate their games. We've always had guys surprise people. We've got good players in the program and we're ready to go."

If Jermaine Dixon isn't ready next month, Pitt may take the floor with only two players who appeared in their 78-76 loss to Villanova in an NCAA regional final on March 28: guards Brad Wanamaker and Ashton Gibbs. Wanamaker averaged 5.8 points last season and Gibbs 4.3.

Dante Taylor, Pitt's first McDonald's All-American recruit in 21 years, and fellow freshmen J.J. Richardson, Lamar Patterson and Talib Zanna all might play immediately. Taylor is expected to take over inside for Blair, who averaged 15.7 points and 12.3 rebounds.

"We're starting over from the beginning," Taylor said. "It gives a chance for everybody to make a name for themselves."

Jermaine Dixon, who broke his right foot during the summer and broke it again shortly after school started, slumped in tournament play last season and needs to catch up once he is healthy. With Fields gone, sophomore Ashton Gibbs — Pitt's most reliable outside shooter last season — may move to point guard.

Gibbs, a sophomore, played for Jamie Dixon's world champion 19-and-under team in New Zealand last summer.

Because the Panthers are such an unknown quantity, this could be only the second time in nine seasons they aren't nationally ranked when a season starts. The last time it happened, junior center Aaron Gray led the Panthers to a 15-0 start in 2005-06.

Such a start probably isn't realistic this time, not with Wichita State, Indiana and either Iowa or Texas to play next month, plus a three-game Big East road trip against Syracuse, Cincinnati and Connecticut in early January.

No doubt Dixon will use the 12 games before Pitt's Big East opener against DePaul on Dec. 28 to sort out which of his young players are ready and which can't be counted upon.

"With some guys, it just clicks," assistant coach Brandin Knight said. "You never know how a guy's going to be when there's 12,000, 13,000 in the stands. Some guys come out and it's like, 'What do I do?' Other guys relish the moment."

Pitt is the only Big East team to win at least 20 games, 10 conference games and play in the NCAA tournament each of the last eight seasons.

Couples find success losing weight together

Having a companion significantly helps people reach dieting and fitness goals.

By KELLIE GORMLY
For The Valley Independent
kgormly@tribweb.com

After Craig Cunningham had open-heart surgery, his doctor told him to start walking and eating more healthfully. He did, with significant thanks to his wife, Pauline.

The Murrysville couple started walking around their neighborhood, and working out several times a week at their local YMCA.

They eat more vegetables and seafood, instead of fattier foods. They have kept up the healthful routine for several years, and both have lost weight.

"It's a lot easier, I'm sure, when both people are doing it," says Craig Cunningham, 72.

Without his wife, he says, "I wouldn't have been as determined. She's sort of the driving force. ... I feel I would have slacked off if she hadn't have been around."

Losing weight is a difficult task. Having a companion - partner, family member, or friend - significantly helps people reach their dieting and fitness goals, experts says.

This is especially true for couples who attempt to lose weight together, rather than only one partner trying it solo.

"Of course, the obvious answer is that they do much better, absolutely," says Laura McCue.

She is a registered dietician in Natrona Heights.

"If they come in together, you know that they want to share this as a joint venture. They're not going to be trying to sabotage or outdo the other."

Couples tend to stay on track longer because of each other's support and accountability, McCue says. When only one-half of a couple is trying to diet and get in shape, the one who isn't interested could undermine the other's efforts. A team effort works more harmoniously.

"With two of you working, there's more stamina, and more motivation to do what you're supposed to do," she says.

Pauline Cunningham, 72, says that supporting her husband's weight-loss efforts helped encourage her own, too.

"You're more motivated if somebody's doing it with you," she says. "As we've gotten older, both of us have tried to be a little more health conscious."

Cathy and Mark Piper, 52 and 55, respectively, started Weight Watchers together last August.

Since then, Mark is down 64 pounds, and Cathy is down 42 pounds.

The Delmont, Westmoreland County, couple credit the team effort for their success, which also includes an exercise program.

"It's been wonderful doing it together, because it's really hard if you have to cook differently for someone else," Cathy Piper says. She still aims to lose about seven more pounds.

"We're a good support for each other. We just are on the same page. ... You have that person to talk to when you want to cheat. ... It just makes it so much easier."

Bill Jones, 59, says his wife, Gretchen, 58, always has been a fitness enthusiast, while he has been more lukewarm about it.

The Franklin Park couple now are pursuing healthful eating and exercise together diligently.

"I didn't do any organized exercising. I used to use the excuse that I play golf," says Jones, chief financial officer of the YMCA of Greater Pittsburgh. He works out with his wife at the Baierl Family YMCA in Franklin Park. In the past five months, He has lost about 20 pounds.

"Doing things together, I think, is important," Bill Jones says. "I think it gives you something more in common, to really just live a healthier lifestyle, and just feel better about yourself."

Lou Rocco, 38, of Greensburg, recruited his entire family to join his diet and fitness efforts.

Five years ago, when Rocco says he was overweight and out of shape, his father, Bob, gave him his old road bike along with a serious challenge: Prepare for a 150-mile, two-day bike ride for multiple sclerosis in just 30 days. Rocco accomplished this feat with his dad and sister, Bethany.

Then, he recruited his wife, Karen, 40, for other charity rides. The family continues to do them regularly, and exercise in other ways.

Now, the Roccos' kids are joining the fitness fever. Their son, Joey, 10, plays ice hockey and has done a kids' triathlon. Even the younger kids -- Nick, 5, and Rebecca, 3 -- have started doing yoga. Meanwhile, the Rocco household's diet contains no white starches, and very little meat and sweets.

The group family effort made such a difference, Lou Rocco says.

"It went from my dad, sister and wife, and it trickled down to my three kids," he says. "I really count on my wife's support, big time. I really couldn't do a lot of what I do without her. It's really a team effort, and it's completely rubbing off on the kids."

Monastery showcases Holy Land in D.C.

About 25,000 people visit each year to see shrines representing the holiest places in Christianity.

By BRETT ZONGKER
Associated Press Writer

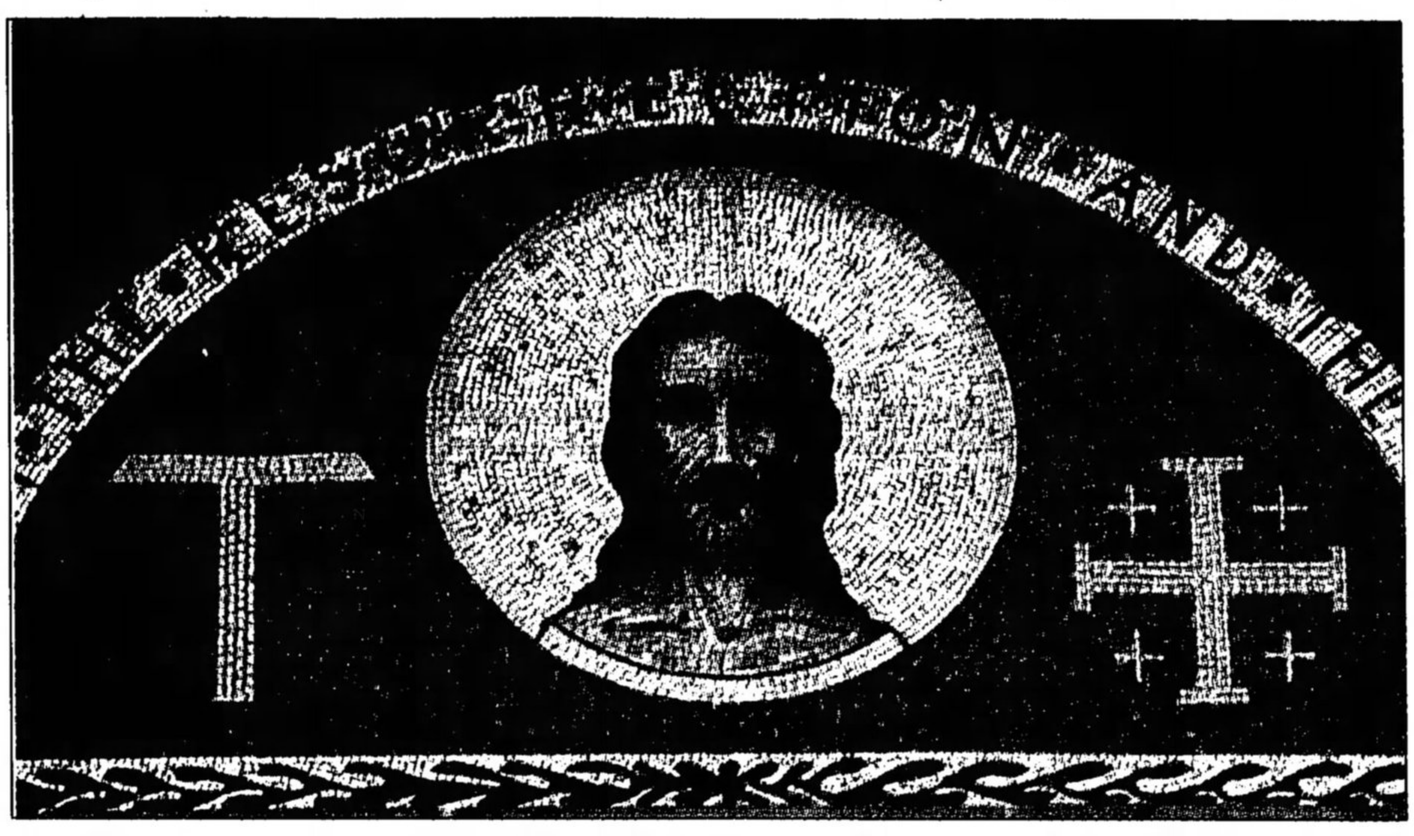
WASHINGTON — On a Christian pilgrimage with her church group, Kristin Toorop looks up to Calvary and her eyes open wide.

She listens as tour guide Gloria Harrington tells the story of where Christ was crucified, with Mary Magdalene kneeling at his feet.

"I'm sure you recognize the scene of Jesus on the cross, between two thieves," Harrington says, before leading the group to take a closer look. "Let's go up to Calvary."

But this is not the sacred Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem, where Christian tradition says Jesus was crucified and resurrected. Rather, it's a replica of Calvary, hidden in a leafy neighborhood in Washington.

For nearly 112 years, Mount St. Sepulchre in D.C. has been home to a Franciscan monastery and its Memorial Church of the Holy Sepulcher — complete with replicas of Jesus' tomb and other holy sites. About 25,000 people visit each year to see its shrines representing the holiest places in Christianity.



Associated Press

This mosaic graces the outside of the Memorial Church of the Holy Sepulcher, located at the Franciscan Monastery of the Holy Land, in Washington, D.C.

During her first visit in October, Toorop, a 43-year-old accountant from Philadelphia, said she was more than impressed.

"To be honest, I think this place is better than the National Cathedral," she said, walking through the Byzantine-style church located across town from the well-known Episcopal cathedral that often hosts presidents and national events.

"This place is more spiritual," Toorop said. "I feel closer to Jesus and to his story and to the pain and suffering he went through because there's these relics here."

Her pilgrimage to the church with a busload of parishioners from Nativity of Our Lord Church in Warminster, Pa., came on the same day the Franciscan Order celebrated a remarkable moment — its 800th anniversary. The order was founded by St. Francis of Assisi, who traveled to Rome in 1209 to ask the pope's approval.

"They wanted to live the Gospel as literally as they could," said Father Jeremy Harrington, who heads the Washington monastery.

That includes a simple life, serving others, with no real worldly possessions of their own.

Hundreds of friars have passed through the D.C. monastery over time, often in preparation to serve in the Holy Land where Franciscans serve as the Catholic Church's chief custodians of the holiest sites. It's also the place where Good Friday collections from all U.S. Catholic churches are sent before the Vatican distributes the money to support the Franciscans' work.

In the Holy Land, they try to foster peace and reconciliation among Muslims, Jews and other groups, Harrington said. They also strive to make the Gospel accessible to people in the tradition of St. Francis.

Harrington, 77, dressed in the friar's traditional brown robe, serves as guardian and commissary of the monastery.

He's one of 20 who live there full-time, celebrating Mass twice daily and meeting together for morning and evening prayer. Other priests stay for shorter periods while studying at nearby Catholic University of America.

"We are the supply line for the friars in the Holy Land," Harrington said.

"We recruit men to become Franciscans and go to serve there. We support them emotionally, spiritually and financially."

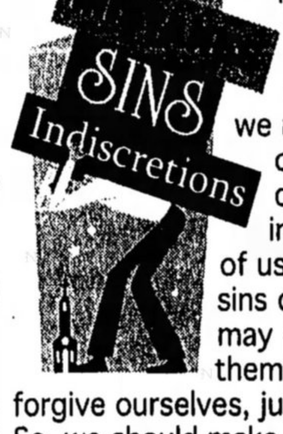
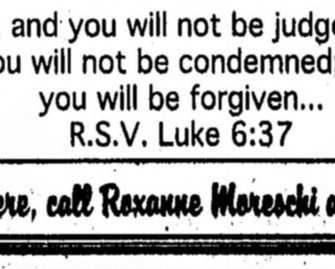
Get Over It!

It goes without saying, but I'll say it anyway: "we have all made mistakes." As Alexander Pope so aptly put it: "To err is human, to forgive, divine." We should remember this the next time we make a mistake. Most certainly, we must learn from our mistakes, and hopefully not continue to repeat them, but we should also forgive ourselves. While it can be hard enough to forgive others for their mistakes, it can sometimes feel almost impossible to forgive ourselves.



We sometimes cannot bring ourselves to forgive something we've done, and we may punish and harangue ourselves for years, or even decades, over youthful indiscretions. In addition, some of us may not be able to forget the sins of our past. And although that may prevent us from repeating them, we must be charitable and forgive ourselves, just as we should forgive others. So, we should make a real effort in the coming days and weeks to forgive the offenses of others as well as our own. Sometimes, it helps to just forget about them; that is, to try to put them out of our mind and stop repeatedly mulling over them. One of the reasons we use the phrase "forgive and forget" is because sometimes that is the only way to forgive, i.e., by forgetting. But far better, and more divine, is to be able to forgive even while remembering the offense. So, we should let go of those unforgiving, vindictive, shameful feelings about the past, and get over it! Corrie ten Boom, who survived incarceration in a Nazi prison camp said, "Forgiveness is to set a prisoner free, and to realize that the prisoner was you."



Judge not, and you will not be judged; condemn not, and you will not be condemned; forgive, and you will be forgiven...

Expectant mom wishes her good deed could be undone

Dear ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm in a bit of a predicament because I lent my maternity clothes to a friend who is due in late December. Her husband lost his job.

I just found out that I am expecting and I am due in late April, and I have no idea how to ask for my clothes back without offending her or telling her I'm pregnant. (My husband and I aren't telling anyone yet.)

I don't think I should wait until I start showing — which could be soon, based on previous pregnancies — because she really needs them and I know I'd be leaving her with very little notice that she needs to go out and buy a whole new wardrobe.

Any help would be greatly appreciated. — IN A BIND IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR IN A BIND: Swear your friend to secrecy and explain that you're pregnant, too. Then, rather than take all your clothes back, take some — and fill in your maternity wardrobe by buying yourself some new items. You have the income in your household to do it. Right now, she's "stuck" — so be a generous friend and don't leave her naked.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who is in her 80s, was always an amazing hostess.

She is excited and eager to help with the upcoming wedding of a grandchild.

But detailed tasks now cause her anxiety, which results in serious physical symptoms.

We suggested that she could help by writing a journal about what she has learned in her own long marriage.

She's an excellent writer, but she wasn't very interested in that idea.

Can you or your readers suggest any other ways a parent can help — something with low anxiety but that feels meaningful? — BRIDE'S MOM IN VIRGINIA

DEAR BRIDE'S MOM: Your mother-in-law could donate an item that would fall into the "something borrowed" or "something blue" category.

She might also present her granddaughter with a collection of family recipes.

But if neither of these ideas interest her, and she has her heart set on entertaining, then why not have her co-host a shower or luncheon, which would take much of the pressure of planning the event off her shoulders?

Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married 14 years and have four beautiful children.

I want to return to nursing school and have for quite a while. I have been accepted to college, but my husband says he wants me to wait until our kids are out of school. Our youngest is only in the fourth grade.

I sometimes feel my husband doesn't want me to better myself. We have had a rocky relationship. He cheated on me three years ago and since then, my feelings are no longer the same for him.

Do you think I am being selfish for wanting to go to school? This is something I would like to do without feeling guilty.

Please help. — CONFUSED IN NEW YORK

DEAR CONFUSED: Listen to your intuition. If it's telling you you may need to prepare to be independent and provide for yourself and your children, then that's what you need to do, and don't feel guilty about it. This may have something to do with the fact that your relationship with your husband has changed since you learned he was unfaithful. If your marriage improves — fabulous. But if it doesn't, you won't be left without a marketable skill — so go for it.
